Sadie's Story

We rescued Sadie from an abusive situation, got her the lifesaving medical care she desperately needed, and after a couple of months of recovering from her injuries, she was adopted by the best family!

Your continued support makes rescues like this possible. Thank you!

This summer we assisted several caretakers who are trying to manage large community cat colonies. Because of the effects of the pandemic, colonies have exploded and we're trying to stabilize the populations. We've rescued dozens of kittens headed for foster homes and adoption from projects like these.

A couple of recent success stories.
This is what your donations help us accomplish.

We got a call about a kitten limping around with a compound fracture. It took us three days to trap Andy, and when we got him to the vet, we discovered that both back legs were broken. He's still recovering after a couple of months of treatments.

Our adoption coordinator, Angel, rescued Alice and Peter from a neglect situation. We got them spayed and neutered and other basic medical care. Peter has been adopted, and Alice (white) is still waiting for her forever home.

Adoption

For kittens, the culmination of all our efforts is adoption by loving families. Week after week, we are able to place healthy, well-adjusted kittens in families that welcome them and make them an integral part of their households.

Thinking about adopting? We always have cats and kitten on display for adoption at Petco, 825 Brevard Road, Asheville. You can fill out an adoption application at www.sisterkitten.org.

Prior to adoption, fosters gain the trust of scared kittens and teach them how to build loving relationships with humans.
